DISCLAIMER

This Risk Warning Disclosure outlines the risks associated with dealing in Over-the-Counter (OTC) Derivatives, including Contracts for Difference (CFDs) and Spot Forex, as well as other Futures and Options products when transacting with CFI Financial (Bahrain) BSC CLOSED (hereinafter referred to as “CFI” or the “Firm”).

CFI's main office is located on the 26th floor of the Bahrain Financial Harbour and is regulated by the Central Bank of Bahrain (CBB). CFI holds a Category 2 Investment Business license issued by the CBB, which authorizes the Firm to engage in the following activities: (a) Dealing in financial instruments as an agent, (b) Arranging deals in financial instruments, (c) Managing financial instruments, (d) Safeguarding financial instruments, (e) Advising on financial instruments, and (f) Operating a Collective Investment Undertaking. This notice is provided in compliance with CBB regulatory requirements, as you are considering engaging in financial transactions involving OTC derivatives and other commodities products with CFI. However, this notice does not, and cannot, disclose or explain all the risks and significant aspects associated with such products. CFI does not provide investment advice or make investment recommendations. While we may provide factual market information or details about a transaction you have inquired about, including transaction procedures and potential risks, we do not offer advice regarding investment decisions. Before deciding to participate in the Spot Forex market, you should carefully assess your investment objectives, experience level, and risk tolerance. Risk of Trading OTC Derivatives: OTC derivatives are complex instruments with a high risk of rapid and significant losses due to leverage. Your potential profit or loss will vary based on fluctuations in the price of the underlying markets of the trade. These transactions may not be suitable for everyone. Therefore, you should carefully consider whether they are appropriate for you, taking into account your knowledge, experience, financial situation, and investment goals. Risks of Trading Futures: Transactions in futures involve the obligation to make, or to take, delivery of the underlying asset of the contract at a future date, or in some cases to settle the position with cash. They carry a high degree of risk. The 'gearing' or 'leverage' often obtainable in futures trading means that a small deposit or down payment can lead to large losses as well as gains. It also means that a relatively small movement can lead to a proportionately much larger movement in the value of your investment, and this can work against you as well as for you. Futures transactions have a contingent liability, and you should be aware of the implications of this, in particular the margining requirements.”

In particular, you should be aware of the following risks:

- Leverage and Gearing: OTC derivatives typically involve a high degree of leverage, meaning a small movement in the underlying market can result in a disproportionate impact on your position. A relatively small change in the market can significantly affect your trade.
- Potential for Significant Losses: While a favorable market movement may result in a profit, an equally small adverse market movement can quickly lead to the loss of your entire deposit.

Leverage and Risk Exposure: CFD and Spot Forex trading are leveraged products that carry substantial risk. You should not engage in CFD or Spot Forex trading unless you fully understand how these instruments work, how profits and losses are generated, and the extent of your exposure to risk. It is important to note that losses can exceed your initial deposit, and no amount you have paid (such as initial margin or variation margin) will limit your losses. Before engaging in such trading, you must ensure that this type of investment is suitable for you based on your financial position and circumstances. Only trade with funds you can afford to lose.

Margin Calls and Position Closure: You may be required to deposit additional margin funds at short notice to maintain your position. If you fail to provide the required funds within the specified time, your position may be closed at a loss, and you will be responsible for any resulting deficit.

Disclaimer of Liability: CFI explicitly disclaims responsibility for any financial losses, damages, or adverse consequences resulting from dealings in OTC Derivatives, including CFDs, Spot Forex, or any other related products. By engaging in transactions with CFI, you acknowledge and accept the following:

- No Liability for Losses: CFI is not liable for any direct or indirect financial losses you may incur while participating in financial markets, including losses related to the use of leverage or trading of OTC derivatives.
- No Indemnity: You agree not to seek indemnity or compensation from CFI for any losses or damages arising from your trading activities. CFI will not be held responsible for any negative outcomes resulting from your investment decisions.
- Additional Margin Requirements: You understand that CFI may require you to deposit additional margin funds at short notice to maintain your position. If you fail to meet the margin requirements, your position may be closed at a loss, and you will be solely responsible for any resulting deficit.
